County begins distribution of ARP funds

BY BOB DEMAREE

Jefferson County Commissioners has begun distributing some of the $6.2 million American Rescue Plan allocation the county received.

Madison Mayor Bob Courtney and the city Utilities Manager Brian Jackson were on hand at Thursday's Commissioners meeting to accept a $1 million check that will go towards the city's drinking water infrastructure project and $250,000 towards an Army Corps of Engineer (ACOE) comprehensive stormwater management plan for both the city and county.

The amount the city received for the drinking water infrastructure project was much less than the $2.5 million Courtney had requested last summer, but much more than the $200,000 Commissioners had offered in their original draft of the Commissioners' ARP plan last August. More negotiations followed late last year, including joint sessions of County Council and County Commissioners in November and December, with much of the discussion focusing on the amount being pledged to Madison's drinking water infrastructure project and serves Madison residents and customers of three rural water companies in the county.

In May, the Commissioners submitted an updated plan to County Council in which nearly $2 million was divided among the county's six water companies based on customers each water company serves in

Human Relations Commission to review ordinance, procedures

BY BOB DEMAREE

With the city of Madison's Human Relations Commission meeting for the first time since February, most of the discussion concerned reviewing complaint procedures and the actual 54-year-old ordinance.

The original ordinance was adopted on Feb. 20, 1968, and Jessica McAlister, who chairs the commission, said it should be looked at and may be due for an update.

"I just don't think we can do other things until this is done," said McAlister. "I don't know that all that's in there needs to be changed" but it may be time for a review. "It already covers a lot of categories, which I think is great. It's just some other wording and procedural things that I'm worried about."

City Council on Jan. 2, 2018 did adopt an amendment that added sexual orientation and gender identity to its categories of discrimination but there have been few is any other changes.

The ordinance currently cites the commission on human relations as being able to "inquire into incidents of division and conflict based upon discrimination because of race, color, religion, national origin, ancestry, sexual orientation or gender identity, and seek to correct the same by recommending

The person to lead that effort is Anim, who comes to Madison as the first president and chief executive officer of the new foundation.

Anim was most recently chief operating officer of Greater Cincinnati Foundation, and prior to that, senior vice president of programs and services at The Health Collaborative in Cincinnati.

"There are all kinds of opportunities to make a difference," Anim said of the opportunity to build the foundation from scratch. "I know it"s not easy but I don't shy away from hard work."

"We did an exhaustive search, and Dora stood out as a great fit for our mission and for Jefferson County. She's an exceptional relationship builder and collaborator, with experience in healthcare, equity, and philanthropy," Connolly said.

Anim actually began her new role on July 5, and plans to spend time listening and learning the needs of the community before recommending any new initiatives.

"It's critically important for BLF to always listen and learn from the residents who live and work in Jefferson County to ensure we are focused on areas of investments that deliver the greatest impact," Anim said. "We believe good health, health care, and wellness are key to a flourishing society. Our aim is a healthier Jefferson County, supported by high quality, holistic care that can be equitably accessed by all."

BLF will host a public meet and greet event to welcome Anim from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m. on Wednesday, Aug. 24, at the Red Bicycle Hall, 125 E. Main St., Madison.

The original hospital was founded in 1896 by a group of 12 women who saw the need for it. In 1899 they became the Bethany Circle of the International Order of King's Daughters and Sons and owned the hospital for more than 120 years, until the recent change of ownership with Norton Healthcare. Now, the Bethany Legacy Foundation, a private foundation governed by a volunteer board of directors, is continuing that heritage of promoting and supporting community health.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today's Highlight in History:

On July 23, 1983, an Air Canada Boeing 767 ran out of fuel while flying from Montreal to Edmonton; the pilots were able to glide the jetliner to a safe emergency landing in Gimli, Manitoba. (The near-disaster occurred because the fuel had been erroneously measured in pounds instead of kilograms at a time when Canada was converting to the metric system.)

On this date:

In 1958, Britain's Queen Elizabeth II named the first four women to peerage in the House of Lords.

In 1967, five days of deadly rioting erupted in Detroit as an early morning police raid on an unlicensed bar resulted in a confrontation with local residents, escalating into violence that spread into other parts of the city; 43 people, mostly Blacks, were killed.

In 1982, actor Vic Morrow and two child actors, 7-year-old Myca Dinh Le and 6-year-old Renee Shin-Yi Chen, were killed when a helicopter crashed on top of them during filming of a Vietnam War scene for "Twilight Zone: The Movie." (Director John Landis and four associates were later acquitted of manslaughter charges.)

In 1990, President George H.W. Bush announced his choice of Judge David Souter of New Hampshire to succeed the retiring Justice William J. Brennan on the U.S. Supreme Court.

In 1997, the search for Andrew Cunanan (koo-NAN'-an), the suspected killer of designer Gianni Versace (JAH'-nee vur-SAH'-chee) and others, ended as police found his body on a houseboat in Miami Beach, an apparent suicide.

In 1999, space shuttle Columbia blasted off with the world's most powerful X-ray telescope and Eileen Collins, the first woman to command a U.S. space flight.

In 2019, Boris Johnson won the contest to lead Britain's governing Conservative Party, putting him in line to become the country's prime minister the following day.

In 2020, the virus-delayed and shortened major league baseball season began with the World Series champion Washington Nationals hosting the New York Yankees at an empty Nationals Park; Dr. Anthony Fauci threw out the ceremonial first ball. (The Yankees won, 4-1, in a game halted by rain.)

Ten years ago: His hair dyed a shocking comic-book shade of orange-red, James Holmes, the former doctoral student accused of killing 12 moviegoers at a showing of the new Batman movie in Aurora, Colorado, appeared in court for the first time. (Holmes was convicted of murder and attempted murder and sentenced to life in prison without parole.) Penn State's football program was all but leveled by penalties for its handling of the Jerry Sandusky child sex abuse scandal as the NCAA imposed an unprecedented $60 million fine, a four-year ban from postseason play and a cut in the number of football scholarships it could award. Sally Ride, 61, the first American woman in space, died in La Jolla (lah HOY'-ah), California.

Five years ago: A tractor trailer was found in a Walmart parking lot in San Antonio, Texas, crammed with dozens of immigrants; ten died and many more were treated at a hospital for dehydration and heat stroke. (The driver, James Bradley Jr., was sentenced to life in prison after pleading guilty to transporting the immigrants resulting in death.) President Donald Trump tweeted that he had "complete power" to issue pardons. Jordan Spieth won the British Open for his third career major championship.

One year ago: The Tokyo Olympics, delayed for a year by the pandemic, were officially declared open by Japan's Emperor Naruhito; tennis star Naomi Osaka lit the cauldron at the opening ceremony. Cleveland's Major League Baseball team, known as the Indians since 1915, announced that it would get a new name, the Guardians, at the end of the 2021 season; the change came amid a push for institutions and teams to drop logos and names that were considered racist.

Today's Birthdays: Retired Supreme Court Justice Anthony M. Kennedy is 86. Actor Ronny Cox is 84. Actor Larry Manetti is 79. Rock singer David Essex is 75. Singer-songwriter-politician John Hall is 74. Actor Belinda Montgomery is 72. Rock musician Blair Thornton (Bachman Turner Overdrive) is 72. Actor-writer Lydia Cornell is 69. TODAY'S HIGHLIGHT IN HISTORY:

On July 25, 1972, the notorious Tuskegee syphilis experiment came to light as The Associated Press reported that for the previous four decades, the U.S. Public Health Service, in conjunction with the Tuskegee Institute in Alabama, had been allowing poor, rural Black male patients with syphilis to go without treatment, even allowing them to die, as a way of studying the disease.

In 1956, the Italian liner SS Andrea Doria collided with the Swedish passenger ship Stockholm off the New England coast late at night and began sinking; 51 people — 46 from the Andrea Doria, five from the Stockholm — were killed. (The Andrea Doria capsized and sank the following morning.)

In 2010, the online whistleblower Wikileaks posted some 90,000 leaked U.S. military records that amounted to a blow-by-blow account of the Afghanistan war, including unreported incidents of Afghan civilian killings as well as covert operations against Taliban figures.

In 2019, President Donald Trump had a second phone call with the new Ukrainian president, Volodymyr Zelenskyy, during which he solicited Zelenskyy's help in gathering potentially damaging information about former Vice President Joe Biden; that night, a staff member at the White House Office of Management and Budget signed a document that officially put military aid for Ukraine on hold.

In 2020, federal agents fired tear gas to break up rowdy protests in Portland, Oregon, that continued into the early morning, demonstrations had been taking place in Portland every night for two months in the aftermath of the Minneapolis death of George Floyd.

NBC announced it had topped the $1 billion mark in advertising sales for the upcoming Olympic Games in London, topping the $850 million in ad sales for the Beijing games in 2008.

Five years ago: A bitterly-divided Senate voted to move forward with Republican legislation to repeal and replace "Obamacare." Sen. John McCain, returning to the Capitol for the first time since he was diagnosed with brain cancer, cast a decisive "yes" vote. (Three days later, McCain joined with two other Republican senators and Democrats in defeating the repeal effort.) ## Big Oaks schedules ice cream social Aug. 1

The event will take place at the historic Oakdale Schoolhouse beginning at 5 p.m. with short walking tours of this historic landmark before the serving of dessert. Homemade ice cream and desserts will be served. Michael Moore, local historian and former Jefferson Proving Ground employee, will present stories and lore of the schoolhouse.

Oakdale School is a one room stone schoolhouse built in 1869. It is located on Big Oaks National Wildlife Refuge, which is overlaid on the closed Jefferson Proving Grounds. The school will be open for tours and viewing at the event. To attend the event, follow the brown directional signs to the refuge office off Highway 421. Additional signs will direct visitors to Oakdale Schoolhouse, which is located on Paper Mill Road (Morgan Road on the refuge).

Big Oaks seeking feedback in environmental assessment

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service has developed an environmental assessment for the use of herbicides on Big Oaks National Wildlife Refuge for vegetation management.

The USFWS is proposing that both ground and aerial herbicide applications would continue to be used to control, prevent, and limit the spread of invasive species and other undesirable vegetation on the refuge. Herbicide application is often the most logistically feasible and cost-effective management tool to control vast expanses of invasive and other undesirable vegetation located in remote areas of the refuge.

Aerial herbicide application and prescribed fire are the only habitat management tools available on much of Big Oaks NWR due to the presence of munitions and unexploded ordnance.

This draft environmental assessment will be available for public review and comment through Aug. 4. The draft document will be available at the refuge office (1661 West JPG Niblo Road, Madison), via email (BigOaks@fws.gov), and can be downloaded from the refuge website (https://www.fws.gov/refuge/big_oaks/). Comments can be sent by email to BigOaks@fws.gov or sent to the refuge office.

Big Oaks NWR consists of 50,000 acres on the former Jefferson Proving Ground located in Jennings, Ripley, and Jefferson counties. The local refuge is managed by the USFWS and provides public use opportunities for hunting, fishing, wildlife observation and photography, interpretation and environmental education.

INDOT to chip seal parts of State Road on Aug. 1

Indiana Department of Transportation maintenance crews plan to begin chip seal operations on State Road 7 in Jefferson and Jennings Counties starting on or after Monday, Aug. 1.

Crews will be active approximately from two miles south of State Road 250 near Madison to the south junction of State Road 3 near Vernon. Motorists should be aware of lane closures with flagging. Delays are expected. Work was originally expected to begin next week, but has been delayed due to materials.

Chip seal work typically lasts three to four days per location depending upon weather. During operations, existing pavement is coated with liquid asphalt, which seals cracks and provides waterproof protection. This extends the service life of the roadway and lowers maintenance costs. Once the seal coat is complete, loose aggregate is applied and swept from the road. After a curing period, crews will return to fog seal the new driving surface and apply pavement markings.

Jefferson County, leading to the final determination that the city's allocation would be $1 million. Other water company totals were Kent $375,000, Dupont $160,000, Canaan $150,000, Rykers Ridge $135,000, and Hanover $100,000.

"Something we've tried to do in our plan is make sure we help everybody. Everybody is a part of this," Commissioner David Bramer said,

"We are really grateful for this, and here's why. Working together," Courtney said. "The water project is going to go a long way. We're in the bidding process now and finalizing our plans. As you know it's been a long time since we've invested in clean drinking water" and the $1 million that will be provided by the Commissioners "will go a long, long way toward that cost."

Courtney said the funds for the storm water plan are also impactful for both the city and county.

"On the stormwater side, this is extremely meaningful, too," the Mayor said. "Over the course of the last 100 plus years there's been seven major flash floods in the north Walnut Street area that has caused millions in dollars of damage, and dozens of lives lost. We want to prevent that in the future or mitigate impact of that in future."

Courtney noted the new Sunrise Crossings development on Madison's hilltop will include a stormwater retention basin that he said will slow down 2.8 million gallons of runoff from 80 acres of commercial property north of Clifty Drive. "All of this is extremely impactful" adding that a current Army Corps of Engineer's study of the Crooked Creek watershed "will bring more solutions to the table."

Bramer said the county is working on its own stormwater management study with Wood Environment and Infrastructure Solutions Inc. and that there will be collaboration with the city.

"I think in this whole process we have discovered as a community our stormwater management practices need modernized," Courtney said, and that can be achieved through the stormwater studies being done by both the city and county.

Commissioner Bobby Little noted a lot more cooperation "goes on than people know" between the city and county. For example, he cited a recent project where the county worked with the city in making the sidewalk safer in front of the Jefferson County Courthouse.

Courtney noted there has also been collaboration between the city and county on the new Jefferson County Sheriff's Office and Criminal Justice Center that's under construction and seeking substance abuse and mental health solutions.

"We also have a partnership on historic preservation and economic development," the Mayor added. "There are some big, big ticket items that we're all working together on. This is just one more of those things that is very helpful, and a lot more to come."

Hanover Town Council vice president Debbie Kroger, who also attended the meeting, thanked the county for the $100,000 in ARP funds the county is providing Hanover water company. "I just want to thank you for the $100,000 towards our water. That's going to help us get the water meters" that allow them to be read remotely. "That's just going to change Hanover" for the better … "we really appreciate that."

County Highway Superintendent Bobby Phillips noted a $500,000 allocation of ARP funds provided to the highway department for equipment purchase "will be a great asset and help. A lot of the things I was planning to bring to budget hearings and trying to figure out what to do for next year, then will speed up the purchases, and help us to be even more efficient in equipment that we're not having to repair. And use some of that current budget money to help us get in better shape than we already have. Thank you very much."

The Commissioners are also in the process of distributing funds to several other entities throughout the county including fire departments, festivals and more from the American Rescue Plan Act of 2021 that was passed by Congress and signed into law by President Joe Biden.

In other business:

• Scott Hubbard, president of the Jefferson County 4-H Fair Board, made a budget request of $20,000 as the county works toward determining its non-profit allocations for 2023. Hubbard said the county's support provides about 16% of the organization's annual funds. "We could not have the level of 4-H that we do" without what the county provides, said Hubbard.

• Hanover Parks Director Scott Davidson came before the Commissioners with budget request for 2023. In the past $5,000 has been provided Hanover's seniors program and $5,000 for the parks program, which is once again being requested. In addition, $10,000 was requested for the Hanover holiday happenings, $10,000 for youth sports recreation, and $5,000 for poverty support for assisting youth to participate in the Hanover parks programs.

• Faith Weir, the county's veterans service officer, presented a second quarter report on work in her office. She said the city of Madison "gifted us $5,000 which we're absolutely grateful for," of which half was used for gift cards for veterans to be used for gas or groceries. "We wanted to be sure we had something on hand to give that immediate relief" to veterans when they urgently need help. "That money is going to be well-spent to serve the veterans in our community.

She reported the county's veteran population in 2021 was at 2,357, a slight drop from 2020 when it was 2,415. Total expenditures for the county were $19,968,000 — $9,100,000 for compensation and pensions, $450,000 for educational expenses, $105,000 for insurance and indemnities and $10,217,000 in medical care. That total surpassed 2020's expenditures of $8.6 million.

Weir noted the compensation and pension funds, along with the educational expenses, go directly to the veterans. "I am proud of that and I am proud of the work we're doing," said Weir. "We don't turn any veterans away whether they're from our county or not. If they need help, we're there for them."

• Little reported that through the county's public defender board that attorney reimbursements the county will be receiving include $20,973 for misdemeanors and $146,283.91 for Level 6 felonies.

• Little reported that based on an insurance meeting the county's employee health insurance costs could potentially cost 10.85% more next year.

• Commissioner Ron Lee reported that receiving a call from a representative of the Honda plant in Greensburg that during a possible two-week shutdown Honda will pay 60 Jefferson County residents who work at Honda to do projects for the local county government. "They can work on our streets, on our highways, our county roads, and they will be paid by Honda. And we get the help. So, we are working on this process," Lee said.

Genton makes return to Trimble football after nearly 20 years away

BY DAVID CAMPBELL

Twenty years after Mike Genton came to Trimble County High School to jump-start a football program that had been recently dormant, Genton is back in Bedford with the exact same mission and he's excited to be back.

Genton was officially named as the new head football coach at Trimble County on Wednesday, replacing J.P. Dale who resigned as coach after one season due to personal issues. Genton stepped in to serve as the interim coach until a replacement could be found, but after two weeks on the job, the bug had bitten him and he wanted back in.

"I taught here last year, so I got to know the kids in the classroom as a teacher. And that kind of transferred over and they said, 'Hey, you know, you've done it before. There's nobody here to coach your kid. Can you at least do it in the interim?' and I said, 'Sure,' " Genton noted after practice on Thursday. "I came out and did it for two weeks and I said, 'You know what, I'm just gonna go ahead and apply.' And so I got the job and here I am. Fast forward almost 20 years later and we're back here again."

Genton first came to Trimble County in 1999, just three years after the football program had been re-started after being dormant for a decade. He went 4-5 in that first season and 16-26 over his first four seasons as the Raiders reached the playoffs for the first time in school history.

He left after the 2004 season to become the middle school principal and worked his way up through administration, eventually becoming superintendent of Jenkins Independent Schools for four years. He returned to Trimble County last year to teach.

"We were the first team to make the playoffs and we were the first team to beat Carroll County in so many-odd years. We beat Holy Cross when they were ranked in the top five. We did a lot of really cool things, a lot of fun things. And I'm hoping that these young men get those kinds of experiences," Genton said. "I hope that they get to experience winning some of those big games like the kids that I coached back then. I'm really, really pleased to have the opportunity."

The situation that Genton comes into isn't that dissimilar to his first stint at Trimble.

David Campbell

The Raiders are in their third year since returning as a program after a two-year layoff and previous coaches Brian Simmins and Dale have assembled a group that is talented and hungry to succeed. Trimble won only two games last year but scored more than 20 points five times, including in each of the last three games of the season.

Genton said he spent the first week of practice just working on fundamentals rather than actual plays, but now that he has the job permanently, he has spent this week installing an offense.

I can't believe how much these kids have improved in just two weeks. I mean, I'm really, really excited about what I'm seeing from those kids now," Genton said. "By no means are we where we need to be. But my goal for this year is for them to be safe, for them to play hard and for them to get better every day."

Genton has several veteran players to build around, including senior quarterback James Thomas Wilcoxson, who rushed for more than 1,000 yards last year and was an all-state selection at punter. That level of talent is not the same as what he had the first time.

"James Thomas is a really, really good athlete. I mean, he's a big, good-looking kid. He can run, he can throw, he can play, he can kick the football," Genton said. "Jessup (Smith) is a hard-nosed kid. Today's the first time I've ever heard him say he was tired. We've been working him to death and that's the first time I've heard him say that he's tired. Jerry Nevils had some injuries last year, so he didn't get to play very much, but he's a heck of a player.

Judge, Yanks on top as baseball returns from All-Star break

BY JAY COHEN
AP BASEBALL WRITER

CHICAGO — Aaron Judge and the New York Yankees, Mookie Betts and the Los Angeles Dodgers, Jose Altuve and the Houston Astros — they're all just looking for more of the same. The Atlanta Braves' title defense is rolling along, and Julio Rodríguez and the Seattle Mariners are looking to crash the playoff party.

Aaron Judge

As baseball returns from the All-Star break — all packed up and ready to go after the AL's 3-2 victory at Dodger Stadium on Tuesday night — the postseason picture is quite crowded, thanks to the addition of a third wild card in each league.

The October equation can change in a hurry, too. Just ask Rodríguez and the Mariners, winners of 14 in a row. Or the contenders looking at the Aug. 2 trade deadline, with Cincinnati Reds ace Luis Castillo, Chicago Cubs catcher Willson Contreras and, yes, Washington Nationals slugger Juan Soto, all believed to be on the market to varying degrees.

Welcome back, indeed.

"We still got a long way to go," Dodgers manager Dave Roberts said. "A lot of baseball to play."

Roberts' club is one of three teams with at least a nine-game lead in their respective divisions heading into the second half. Led by Betts and Freddie Freeman, Los Angeles is 10 games up on Manny Machado and the San Diego Padres in the NL West.

"Just a lot of good things happened in the first half for us," Freeman said.

Altuve and Houston still have a nine-game lead in the AL West, even with the win streak for Seattle. The Astros and Mariners close out their season series with seven more games this month, beginning Friday night in Seattle.

"I thought the Mariners had a good team from the very beginning, and I told everybody that then at the time, they finished extremely strong last year, and you know, you have to beat them," Houston manager Dusty Baker said. "They are not going to beat themselves."

The AL East has been the best division in baseball — every team is .500 or better, even the 46-46 Baltimore Orioles — but that hasn't affected New York very much at all. The Yankees begin the second half with a gaudy 64-28 record and a whopping 13-game lead over Tampa Bay.

While Giancarlo Stanton has delivered his usual power and Clay Holmes has been one of the game's most dominant relievers, it's Judge leading the way for the Bronx Bombers. He is batting .284 with 33 homers and 70 RBIs, joining Shohei Ohtani among the frontrunners for AL MVP.

"I think he continues to get better and better as a leader, which has always been, I think, a positive trait of his," New York manager Aaron Boone

Report: NCAA makes progress on gender inequality at tourneys

BY ERIC OLSON
ASSOCIATED PRESS

Among the most visible changes noted in the progress report were "March Madness" branding and increased cross-promotion for both tournaments in 2022, as well as the addition of four teams to the women's tournament to create a "First Four" event to bring it in line with the men's tournament structure.

The NCAA has adequately addressed nine of 23 recommendations for creating comparable NCAA Tournament experiences for men's and women's basketball players, according to a progress report released Wednesday.

College sports' largest governing body hired a third party to evaluate its response to a scathing report issued almost a year ago that criticized gender inequality in the tournaments.

Among the most visible changes noted in the progress report were "March Madness" branding and increased cross-promotion for both tournaments in 2022, as well as the addition of four teams to the women's tournament to create a "First Four" event to bring it in line with the men's tournament structure.

The NCAA men's and women's basketball committees jointly rejected a recommendation to hold simultaneous Final Fours in the same city, the report said, and NCAA leadership decided against changing the Division I basketball administrative structure.

That means vice president of women's basketball Lynn Holzman continues to report to senior vice president of basketball Dan Gavitt.

An outside firm was hired to conduct the assessment and that the NCAA was honoring the firm's request to not be identified, as per company policy, NCAA Associate Director of Communications Meghan Durham told The Associated Press in an email.

"The findings of this assessment illustrate our commitment to advance gender equity at NCAA championships. Thanks to a collaborative spirit, significant accomplishments were achieved this past year," NCAA President Mark Emmert said. "We have said it before — our work is not finished. Gender equity must remain a priority for leaders throughout college sports and we look forward to continuing to support these efforts moving forward."

The initial report published in August was done by Kaplan Hecker & Fink LLP, which was hired after the NCAA failed to provide similar amenities to the teams in the 2021 men's and women's Division I tournaments.

The tournaments were played in "bubbles" because of the pandemic, and players blew up social media with complaints that showed disparities between men's and women's weight-training facilities, food, lounge areas and gifts — prompting apologies from NCAA executives.

The Kaplan report said the NCAA failed to uphold its commitment to gender equity by prioritizing its cash-cow men's tournament "over everything else" and put forth the recommendations that the NCAA has enacted or considered.

The issues that women's players drew attention to have been addressed, the progress report noted. And in addition to the branding improvements, the NCAA increased full-time staff working on women's tournament; improved communication between men's and women's basketball committees; began a program to identify and track areas that need to be the same, comparable and different in men's and women's tournament experiences; hired a third party to produce an annual report on gender-equity initiatives; and issued statements on how gender-equity issues are or will be addressed.

The progress report also pointed out the NCAA increased the 2022 women's tournament expenses budget by $6.1 million and that an additional $1 million would be added.

Among areas in progress: hiring a full-time employee to focus on women's and gender-equity issues; initiating third-party assessments of gender-equity progress every five years; emphasizing new corporate sponsorships for the women's tournament; pursuing promotional and marketing opportunities that benefit both tournaments; building on the increased branding visibility with "March Madness" courts and hoops at the women's First Four and first and second rounds.

In the future, the NCAA is looking to pursue standalone rights for the

Lyles leads U.S. sweep; Jackson tops Jamaica 1-2 in 200

BY EDDIE PELLS
AP NATIONAL WRITER

EUGENE, Ore. — Noah Lyles crouched down, put his hands on his knees and glared at the clock. Not seeing what he'd hoped for, he waved his hand dismissively and walked back onto the track to celebrate what was still a long-awaited win in the 200 meters at the world championships.

Oh, but this night would just keep getting better.

The clock that, for a moment, read "19.32," would adjust down a tick to "19.31." That meant he broke Michael Johnson's hallowed, 26-year-old American record — a mark that, for decades, seemed unapproachable.

"I was very self-concerned about whether that number was going to turn from a '2' to a '1," Lyles conceded after Thursday night's history-making win.

It did.

Then, a few seconds later, the scoreboard that, at first, only had Lyles' name on it, popped up with the names of the two finishers behind him: Kenny Bednarek and Erriyon Knighton of the U.S. The U.S. had swept the 200, just as it had the 100 four nights earlier.

Lyles pounded his hand on the track four times, stood up straight and ripped off his jersey. He grabbed his medal from the presenter, then went over and hugged his family and took hold of an American flag — one of many that have been needed at the first world championships to be held in the United States.

"America's, like, scooping up medals left and right," Lyles said. "This feels great because I've been waiting for America to come out and dominate since I got on the platform."

Rule changes on state DNR properties now in effect

BY THE COURIER STAFF

Several rule changes that affect Department of Natural Resources properties took effect on Friday, with the Natural Resources Commission, Attorney General's Office, and Governor's Office having recently approved them.

Changes include the following:

• Stands or blinds (including portable ground blinds) are allowed to be left overnight on DNR properties if the blind or stand is legibly marked with the name, address and phone number of the owner or the owner's customer identification number issued by the DNR.

• Trail/game cameras can be placed on properties managed by the Division of Fish & Wildlife, as well as on state forests, and state recreation areas as long as the camera is legibly marked with the owner's name, address, phone number or customer identification number issued by DNR. Placement of the camera must not damage a tree.

• The placing of bait for wildlife is prohibited on any DNR property. Exceptions are granted for bait or food placed for wildlife management as authorized by DNR, the result of authorized agricultural operations on the property (like tenant farming) or a bird feeder placed by a DNR employee. • The Hanover College Summer Cross Country Racing Series will conclude next Wednesday. Each week, the race distance increased one kilometer and ends with a 5K race on Wednesday July 27 on Hanover College's nationally renowned cross country course, the site of the 2003, 2008 and 2013 NCAA Division III National Championships.

The cost is $4 and registration will begin at 6:15 p.m.

For more information, email Hanover College coach Brady Wells at wellsb@hanover.edu.

• The Hanover Parks Department and the Jefferson County Soccer Association is teaming up to offer soccer at Hanover Park this fall for the second year in a row.

Sign-ups for the JCSA-Hanover Fall League are currently under way. JCSA officials will be on-site at Hanover Park at 200 Spruce Lane on Saturday, July 30 from 11 a.m. until 2 p.m. The cost is $55 and all practices and games will take place at Hanover Park.

In 2021 which was the first year of this partnership, there were three divisions (U6, U8, U10) with three teams in each. The goal in 2022 is to increase participation numbers through lower roster sizes. This will allow each participate the opportunity to maximize practice and playing time and improve their foot-to-ball skills. Coaches are also needed.

Applications are also available at the Hanover Park Office located in the Community Center at Hanover Park.

For more information about this soccer opportunity in Hanover, you can contact Brian Sachleben with JCSA at (502) 310-8484 and/or Scott Davidson with the Hanover Parks Department at (812) 806-1042 or (812) 292-4282.

• The Madison Speed Clinic, that was scheduled to be held at Madison Consolidated High School Monday through Wednesday, has been canceled due to construction at the track.

MLB struggling to get crowds back to pre-COVID-19 levels

BY STEVE MEGARGEE
ASSOCIATED PRESS

MILWAUKEE — Blame it on lingering effects of the pandemic, resentment over the lockout or economic fears.

Major League Baseball is struggling to fill the stands at pre-COVID levels as the sport heads into the last 2 1/2 months of its first season since 2019 without capacity restrictions.

MLB reached the All-Star break with an average attendance of 26,409. That represents a drop of 5.4% from the All-Star break of 2019 — which was 10 days earlier than this year.

League officials remain encouraged and point to the recovery.

"We have come back to between 94-95% of where we were prior to the pandemic," MLB chief revenue officer Noah Garden said. "So we feel really good about the progress we have made on the attendance side rebounding strongly from a situation that threatened the very core of how we operate as an industry."

Attendance is up over 70% from the season-ending average in 2021, when only Texas started at full capacity and all 30 teams weren't at 100% until July 2. MLB played its abbreviated 2020 regular season without spectators.

While MLB's average attendance had fallen each year since 2015, most of the drops were by less than 2%. Average attendance was over 30,000 for 14 straight seasons from 2004-17 but hasn't reached that mark since.

"Attendance has been dropping about 1% a year — year after year — for about the last 15 years," said Victor Matheson, a Holy Cross economics professor who specializes in sports economics. "Major League Baseball attendance peaked in 2007 and has been falling pretty consistently year after year for over a decade. What we'd just normally expect after about three years is about 3% lower attendance."

Bob Heaning, a 48-year-old fan from Cranford, New Jersey, said he used to attend about a dozen New York Yankees games per year. He's attended just three this season, has tickets for two more games and doesn't plan to attend any others.

Heaning said he stopped going as often because he bought a house last year and is staying at home more often, but he also believes the high price of attending games may be keeping fans away. That could prove particularly true this year as inflation causes more people to spend more carefully.

"I think people are maybe more concerned," Hearing said. "There's not as much expendable income."

Matheson said MLB relies more than other professional sports leagues on out-of-town fans. That makes MLB particularly vulnerable to issues that could curtail tourism.

"If travel's disrupted, either by expensive gas prices or expensive airline tickets or just general travel disruptions, that could make a big dent," Matheson said.

Charles Lindsey, an associate professor of marketing at the University at Buffalo School of Management, noted that single-game ticket sales remain solid but season ticket sales have gone down. He said the NBA faced a similar problem this season.

Lindsey cited inflation as a leading cause and said the pandemic may have contributed to a lesser extent.

"But those are factors that are common across all sorts of recreational experiences," Lindsey said. "And a lot of recreational entertainment — dining out, travel — a lot of those areas are back to pre-pandemic levels."

Lindsey believes dissatisfaction because of the lockout may have caused some fans not to renew their season tickets. He also speculated some franchises might have reduced their staffs during the pandemic and paid for it with reduced ticket sales.

Teams have been particularly hard hit in group sales.

Rick Schlesinger, the Brewers' president of business operations, said last month at a Milwaukee Press Club gathering that the team's group-ticket sales normally total about 600,000 annually. Schlesinger estimated that total would be about 400,000 this season.

He noted some businesses are still working remotely and therefore are having fewer group outings, and that not as many schools as usual have made ballpark trips.

"The group business has not returned to anywhere near normal levels, frankly not surprisingly," Schlesinger said.

Oakland's attendance has plunged nearly 55% from its 2019 All-Star break level. The Athletics dramatically cut payroll amid concerns about the franchise's future in the Bay Area as they seek a new stadium.

Transfer portal windows endorsed

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

INDIANAPOLIS — Division I college football players would have two periods of time — one in the winter and one in the spring — to enter the transfer portal and be immediately eligible to play if a proposed rule change gets final approval.

The Division I Council endorsed on Tuesday several of the Transformation Committee's initial proposals and passed them on to the D-I Board for approval.

The Board meets again early next month.

The council also moved along recommendations for expanding the benefits schools can provide athletes without the need for a special exemption and concepts to improve the infractions process.

The implementation of transfer portal "entry windows" would happen this coming school year if the proposals are approved as expected.

The windows would be set specific to each sport.

Athletes in winter and spring sports would be required to provide written notification of transfer for 60 days following the NCAA championship selections in their sport.

In fall sports, including football, there will be two entry windows.

The first would begin the day following championship selection and last 45 days. The second would be from May 1-15.

Hamilton seeks 1st win of season in 300th F1 race

BY JEROME PUGMIRE
AP AUTO RACING WRITER

PARIS — Lewis Hamilton enters his 300th Formula One race at the French Grand Prix this weekend in the uncustomary position of chasing his first win of the season.

The seven-time world champion holds the F1 record with 103 victories and 103 poles, but the 37-year-old British driver also shares two records with fellow great Michael Schumacher: seven world titles and winning at least one race in 15 straight seasons. Schumacher won every year from his 1992 F1 debut through 2006, while Hamilton has one every year since his 2007 series debut.

But Hamilton is winless through the first 12 races of this season. He is inching closer to the top of the podium after three straight podium finishes since Mercedes ironed out ongoing issues with bouncing. F1 races Sunday in the French Grand Prix.

"It's been really positive to have some consistency. We're constantly adding performance, we're constantly progressing and there's a lot to come," Hamilton said. "In the last race (in Austria) we were only a few tenths (of a second) off the lead guys in qualifying."

As for standout moments in his illustrious career, Hamilton selected his first F1 win in 2007, his first title in 2008, and winning on his home track at Silverstone.

"The whole realization of reaching your dream is a very, very surreal experience and it is always going to be your first," Hamilton said. "The amount of sleepless nights as a family that all of us had had, not knowing whether or not we would actually reach our goal, reach our dream, but never giving up."

There have been intense rivalries, including last season when Red Bull star Max Verstappen clinched the title in the controversial season-ending Abu Dhabi Grand Prix. Hamilton also suffered a bitter defeat to Mercedes teammate Nico Rosberg in 2016 and some tussles with Fernando Alonso in 2007 with McLaren.

When Hamilton faced Alonso, the Spaniard had already won his two F1 titles. He calls Alonso his toughest opponent "out of pure pace, I always say it's Fernando.

"We had some good battles, I wish we could have more," Hamilton said. "I remember the task of being alongside Fernando when I was 22. I was so young mentally and of course, OK in terms of skill, but it's a lot of pressure to go against a great."

Alonso agreed.

"He has been a tremendous driver and a legend. Back then probably no one thought that someone will be able to win seven titles like Michael," Alonso said. "Congratulations for the 300 and hopefully another win soon."

Hamilton sat out Friday's first practice at the French GP as Mercedes used test and reserve driver Nyck de Vries in the car. de Vries finished ninth.

Sainz's engine caught fire near the end of the last race in Austria two weeks ago, forcing his fourth DNF this season. Sainz was handed a 10-place grid penalty because Ferrari changed the power unit for this weekend.

Ferrari is seeking a third consecutive victory following Sainz's win at Silverstone and Leclerc's drive to victory in Austria.

It was Leclerc's third win of 2022 and ended a dismal run of five races without a podium finish that had been coupled with frustrating team orders.

"It feels good, I've got a much better feeling than I had coming into Austria. We just need to keep the focus, that level of performance," Leclerc said. "We've been very strong for very long now but unfortunately we had quite a bit of problems. But I'm confident we can be quick this weekend."

Leclerc's win trimmed Verstappen's championship lead to 38 points.

Mick Schumacher is on a roll after 31 races without scoring a single point. He's now headed into Sunday seeking a third-straight points finish.

The 23-year-old German feels the pressure has been lifted amid a difficult season. He was criticized by Haas team principal Guenther Steiner following a May crash in Monaco, then a 14th-place finish in Azerbaijan and another DNF in Canada.

Suddenly he was facing questions about his future in F1.

But the son of Michael Schumacher responded by finishing eighth at Silverstone to score the first points of his career, then he was sixth two weeks ago in Austria for back-to-back points-scoring finishes. He showed increased confidence in both races and went wheel-to-wheel with world champions Verstappen and Hamilton.

Schumacher feels more comfortable in the car than earlier in the season.

"It's just a matter of being consistent with what we're doing. I think we always pretty much start off with a good set-up," Schumacher said.

Four-time F1 champion Sebastian Vettel, a family friend, was driving behind Schumacher at Silverstone and cheered him on from inside his car.

"I think Mick is on the right track . . . it's great for him to show what he's capable of," Vettel said. "He had an unlucky start to the season. "

His contract runs out at the end the year and, with an increasing commitment to environmental issues weighing on his mind, observers have questioned whether he will continue.

"I think there is a clear intention to keep going and we'll see soon where we stand," Vettel said. "I'm talking to the team."

Designer clothes invite fashionable cold shoulder

AMY DICKINSON
ASK AMY

Dear Amy: Some time ago I gave my good friend "Cheryl" some very expensive designer clothes I thought she would like, but they were too big for her.

With my permission she showed them to a couple of other people, one of whom took the clothing, apparently with delight.

My friend told her that I didn't want any money for the clothes, but she suggested a bottle of wine would be a nice thank you.

I have seen this woman in passing many times and not one word of thanks has been given.

I have started giving her the cold shoulder, but I don't think she notices.

It shouldn't bother me, but it does, so I was thinking of telling her the reason I'm ignoring her.

I don't like her anyway!

Should I just let it go?

— Dressed Down

Dear Down: Your story reminds me of the well-known thought experiment: If you deliver a cold shoulder, but the recipient doesn't notice, is the shoulder still cold?

I know you understand that when you willingly surrendered these items, they ceased being yours.

Because these clothes came through an intermediary, there is a remote possibility that this recipient does not realize that the clothes actually originated with you.

There is also a possibility that she sold the clothing, made a mint, and is now sashaying through town, feeling pretty good about her choices.

You don't seem to have a positive relationship with her, and so the stakes are different than if you had a longstanding friendship to worry about.

The next time you see this person, approach her and say, "Cheryl told me she passed along some of my clothes to you. I'm wondering how they're working out?"

Depending on how she answers, you can add: "It was hard to say goodbye to things I love. I was glad they landed in a good home, but honestly, I'm disappointed that you never acknowledged it or thanked me."

Divorced brother has become a couch-spud

AMY DICKINSON
ASK AMY

Dear Amy: My brother is newly divorced.

After he and his wife split up, I let him stay with me so he could save money, sort things out, and receive some emotional support.

He is a good guy and he pays half of the bills (late — but he pays them).

He is also sloppy and I am constantly cleaning up after him.

He is aware of my displeasure with cleaning up after an adult, but he seems not to care.

He has lived with me for close to five years now — and I need my space. We are both middle-aged and divorced. I'm an empty nester, and want to live alone.

I am annoyed by everything he does, but I feel awful for feeling that way.

Amy, there are times when I don't want to come home because I know I will encounter a mess. I yearn for space and time alone.

Am I being selfish and uncaring for being annoyed just by his presence?

— Stymied Sister

Dear Sister: Five years in, your brother is no longer "newly divorced."

He is a middle-aged man living with a sister who treats him exactly the way he wants to be treated — like a child. It sounds like such a good and comfortable situation for him that of course he doesn't want to leave!

It's a marvel that you still consider your brother a "good guy," because — according to you — he is completely disinterested in your discomfort. Instead, he seems to be drafting along on your superior caretaking abilities and your guilt regarding him.

Why do you feel guilty? It might be because you equate love with caretaking.

Maybe it's time to prove that you love him enough to let him go.

I suggest that in order to save your relationship with your brother, it is time for you to ever-so-certainly, calmly and kindly show him the door. Consider this gentle shove a declaration that it's time for him to start his next chapter, and that he is ready.

ASTROLOGY

ARIES (March 21-April 19): — You may meet someone who is seductive and seems to be the answer to your prayers, however, you are most likely only seeing what you want to see. Focus on physical activities and work around your home.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): — You may want to share a stroke of good fortune. You could feel that you are blessed with an abundance of good things and generously distribute them. Your upbeat attitudes might not let you see red flags in romantic fantasies.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): — Knowledge is power. Learn everything you can about a subject by doing some deep research online or in books. You may be caught up in romantic daydreams and be indiscriminate about your choices.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): — Stay centered and right-side up. Your astute observations and financial decisions should keep you on the right track even when you are extravagant. Emotional turmoil may briefly erupt in the background — don't engage.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): — Your wisdom and familiarity with the terrain can let you lead others down the best path. Use good judgment to help a friend or loved one who is struggling to remain optimistic due to circumstances beyond their control.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): — There is a difference between what you want and what you need. Ask for advice if you find that someone's offer or plan seems too good to be true. Prioritize your budget so that you do not go overboard with expensive treats.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): — Form your own opinions, but don't try to mold the facts. Your imagination could be in overdrive, making you dissatisfied with anything that doesn't live up to your fantasies. You could be prone to extravagance of thought and deed.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): — Romantic fantasies can take up a lot of space in your mind. You are wise enough to know that some of your notions are unattainable, but you could make other more practical choices and still walk away with a prize.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): — Fill your mind with useful information and clear up any misunderstandings. You may learn something of value by searching the internet, asking a trusted advisor, or by imitating methods used by successful people.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): — You may do without some of the little luxuries you enjoy so you can fit in with the crowd. A family member may offer wise advice if you are possibly being misled or misinformed by someone you know.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): — You cannot escape the past, but it can be a great teacher. Focus on the future and learn to understand all the circumstances of past criticism or of people who have betrayed your trust. This isn't a good time to join a new group.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): — It is a good idea to let passing fancies pass. Stop and consider the consequences when faced with an urge to be extravagant. Think twice before going on casual shopping sprees and stick to your financial plan.

ASTROLOGY

ARIES (March 21-April 19): — Iron out misunderstandings and clear up arguments immediately. Someone might think you are being too aggressive. Moving too fast can cause costly accidents. Focus on getting a job completed in a business-like manner.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): — You risk losing opportunities if you lose your temper. Avoid driving too fast or missing the bus by giving yourself extra time to reach your destination. Find ways to economize without sacrificing your peace of mind.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): — See the forest rather than the trees. You might be irritated by a detail when the big picture is exactly the way it should be. Optimism must be embraced to reach your goals and succeed with an ongoing financial project.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): — If you are too busy socializing, you could miss out on a business opportunity. Someone may be willing to sweeten the pot to make a deal go through. Financial security will become a reality if you build slowly, but steadily.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): — Open your eyes. When you take the time to observe, you see things others may miss. Something that looks like a sketchy business deal could give you a chance to show off your cleverness and common sense.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): — Keep it simple and don't overthink. Take all your emails, texts and voicemails at face value, without reading anything extra into them. Lend a sympathetic ear to friends who confess their problems or troubles.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): — Movement can help open your mind and heart. Stretch your body by taking a walk with a friend, taking a class or working out. Get more accomplished by working side by side with an acquaintance or astute coworker.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): — Put practical affairs at the top of the list. You may be at odds with a loved one or partner but that does not mean you must argue. Put your ideas to work in viable ways and don't be afraid to ask for assistance or favors.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): — You can lower your guard and be real. When you are authentic, you put others at ease, and they will be more likely to share. Don't take it personally if your messages are misinterpreted by someone in a hurry.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): — Just because the environment is intense doesn't mean that you cannot be upbeat and optimistic. You can enjoy a serious but pleasant discussion with a business contact and iron out several loose ends.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): — Think about what is best for the common good. Your partner or a loved one might be focused on achieving materialistic ambitions and become impatient if you dawdle. You can do the right thing and cooperate.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): — Some people aren't interested in what money can buy but in the power that wealth wields. You can be understanding when someone rushes to get something done and be a calming influence when tempers flare.

Judge and the Yankees are trying to chase down the franchise's first championship since 2009 and No. 28 overall. But there are all sorts of potential roadblocks — both nearby and further away.

The crosstown Mets are on top of the NL East, looking to hold off the Braves and take the franchise's first division title since 2015. Each of baseball's Central divisions had a mediocre first half, but Milwaukee and St. Louis have an array of stars, and Carlos Correa could power Minnesota back into the playoffs after it finished last in the AL Central in 2021.

Even the Chicago White Sox, who underperformed early on, showed some positive signs while taking three of four at the division-leading Twins in the runup to the break.

"We've been talking about it for a while. We're going to turn the corner," White Sox right-hander Michael Kopech said. "Things are going to start going our way."

The return of switch-hitting catcher Yasmani Grandal could provide a lift for the White Sox, who are looking for their third consecutive playoff appearance. The injured list might have a more dramatic effect on the pennant races than the trade deadline.

Mets ace Jacob deGrom is coming back after he was sidelined by a stress reaction in his right scapula. Second baseman Ozzie Albies could rejoin Atlanta's loaded lineup next month after he broke his left foot on June 14. Philadelphia slugger Bryce Harper, San Diego shortstop Fernando Tatis Jr. and Houston right-hander Lance McCullers Jr. also could return in time to help their teams down the stretch.

women's tournament once existing media and marketing contracts expire in 2024, the report said, as well as hiring a senior vice president for revenue focusing on both tournaments and creating a women's tournament revenue distribution plan that's more in line with that of the men's tournament.

NCAA revenues surpassed $1 billion in the year before the pandemic and almost $900 million of that was tied to the media rights deal with CBS and Turner for the men's tournament.

The women's tournament is part of a package with more than two dozen other NCAA championships that ESPN owns and pays about $34 million per year for through 2023-24.

But according to an assessment done for Kaplan by a team of sports media and marketing experts, the women's tournament will be worth between $81 and $112 million annually beginning in 2025.

6-10 Han Xu making mark in WNBA, China

BY DOUG FEINBERG
AP BASKETBALL WRITER

NEW YORK — Han Xu understandably grew up idolizing Yao Ming, mesmerized by the giant shadow the 7-foot-6 Hall of Famer cast each time he stepped onto an NBA court.

Standing 6-10, Han would like to emulate Yao's impact — including his influence on the sport in China. She wants to be a female beacon of basketball in her native land.

Han is on her way. Fans can't seem to get enough of the 22-year-old budding star.

"Han and Li (Yueru) have been creating hype online and offline. Many girls have been inspired by Han and Li, and we have numbers to show that more girls have started participating in basketball on all levels," said China basketball analyst Michael Yuan, founder of Team Fountainhead. "We can also clearly see more news coverage and other kinds of user generated content on China's social media platform."

Han's highlights have garnered millions of views on streaming platforms in China. Kuaishou, a global social media platform, recently hosted a livestreaming session with her that generated about 1.6 million views.

Han and the 6-7 Li, who is with the Chicago Sky, are the latest of a half dozen Chinese players to have spent time in the WNBA. The first to have an impact in the league was Haixia Zheng, who averaged 8.9 points in two seasons with the Los Angeles Sparks in 1997 and 1998 — starting 21 games her first year.

"Homegrown players like Han Xu and Li Yueru succeeding at the highest level drives interest among China's passionate basketball fans and inspires Chinese youth to play the game," said Jonathan Li, senior vice president of NBA China.

Chinese fans became aware of Han and Li Yueru during their stints with the Olympic team that finished fifth in Tokyo. But their fan base has grown since both were drafted in 2019 — Han in the second round, Li in the third.

"I was very honored to be able to come here to make my dream come true in 2019," Han said through a translator. "At that moment, I just wanted to grow up gradually, to learn from the veteran players who compete in the world highest-level basketball league.

"And I also hoped to be able to promote the sport in China with my influence here."

Like her childhood hero: the 7-6 Yao.

"He had a very successful career in NBA and he also promoted the culture of the sport in China so that now more Chinese people like to watch basketball," Han said. "I hope I can also make some influence in WNBA and then transfer my influence back to my country and let more fans to see the performance from a Chinese player."

Neither Han nor the 6-7 Li, who turned 23 in March, were born when Zheng was doing her WNBA thing in L.A. And neither have Yao's skills — and they may never be as good, not many are.

The Houston Rockets made Yao the No. 1 overall pick in the 2002 NBA draft. He has become an ambassador of the game in China and is currently a Chinese basketball executive.

Though Han and Li are still honing their skills, the players' popularity is on the rise in China.

Han is averaging 9.2 points and shooting nearly 54% from the field while playing about 18 minutes a game with the Liberty. Li hasn't had as much success, averaging just 2 points a game in Chicago.

When they played in New York last month, a handful of Chinese media were on hand. Interviews with the players drew millions of views in China. They will square off again on Saturday and it will be broadcast live in China.

"The population of Chinese basketball fans is huge," Li said through a translator. "Fans in China, while they are watching me and Han Xu highlights, will get to know more WNBA players and WNBA teams. I think this is a thing that could benefit me and Han Xu but also could benefit the WNBA as well."

Both Han and Li have excelled in the offseason in the Chinese Basketball League that has had WNBA players such as Maya Moore and Sylvia Fowles play in it.

"When I was growing up there were a lot of WNBA players who I looked up to," Li said. "There is a lot of WNBA players who I think no matter in what aspect in life or in their career, I think (in) all those aspects they are doing a great job. They are excellent."

Han has shown flashes that she could be dominant force in the WNBA. She scored a career-high 24 points against Las Vegas earlier this month.

"I think it's a great honor that domestic fans can watch WNBA games on TV in China," Han said. "I think when fans in China watch my play in the league, they can get a better idea about the development of this sport in overseas."

Rapinoe, King urge freedom for detained Griner at The ESPYS

BY BETH HARRIS
ASSOCIATED PRESS

LOS ANGELES — Soccer player Megan Rapinoe admonished her fellow athletes for not doing enough to speak out and encouraged them to support detained WNBA star Brittney Griner at The ESPYS on Wednesday night.

Brittney Griner

Griner was arrested in Russia in February after customs officials said they found vape canisters containing cannabis oil in her luggage. She faces up to 10 years in prison if convicted on charges of transporting drugs.

"For me, the most striking thing is that BG's not here. BG deserves to be free, she's being held as a political prisoner, obviously," Rapinoe said while accepting a trophy for best play at the show honoring the past year's top athletes and moments in sports.

"Like what are we doing here dressed up like we are when our sister is detained abroad? We haven't done enough, none of us. We can do more, we can support her more, and just let her know that we love her so much."

"First, bring BG home. Gotta do that," tennis great Billie Jean King said.

Griner has pleaded guilty in court and acknowledged possessing the canisters but said she had no criminal intent.

Rapinoe urged her fellow competitors to keep Griner's face and name on social media.

"Every time we say it in interviews, it puts pressure on everybody," she said. "It puts pressure on the administration, it puts pressure on Russia, it puts pressure on Putin, it puts pressure on everyone, and it lets BG know also above everything that we love her and that we miss her and that we're thinking about her all the time."

NBA Finals MVP Stephen Curry hosted the show and joined WNBA players Nneka Ogwumike and Skylar Diggins-Smith in calling attention to Griner's plight.

"It's been 153 nights now that BG has been wrongfully detained thousands of miles away from home, away from her family, away from her friends, away from her team," Diggins-Smith said. "All throughout that time, we've kept her in our thoughts and in our hearts even though we know that ain't nearly enough to bring her home, y'all."

Wearing her Phoenix Mercury jersey under his track suit, Curry noted the effort being made to free Griner.

"But as we hope for the best, we urge the entire global sports community to continue to stay energized on her behalf," he said. "She's one of us, the team of athletes in this room tonight and all over the world. A team that has nothing to do with politics or global conflict."

They were applauded by Griner's wife, Cherelle Griner, who was in the audience at the Dolby Theatre in Hollywood.

Curry picked up a trophy, too, for best record-breaking performance, having set the mark for most 3-pointers made in league history. He also shared the best team award with the NBA champion Golden State Warriors.

Los Angeles Angels two-way star Shohei Ohtani won best athlete in men's sports.

"It's an honor to be in the same category as all of you. You are the best at what you do," the Japanese player said, speaking in English via videotape. "Have a wonderful everything and enjoy your afterparties."

Ledecky earned two golds and two silvers at the Tokyo Games last year, giving her 10 career Olympic medals. She received her trophy from Maybelle Blair, the 95-year-old who played in the All-American Girls Professional Baseball League.

"I represent one of the few sports that is also a really important life skill, so I want to encourage all the parents here, anyone watching, to make sure your kids learn how to swim," Ledecky said. "Our planet is 70% water, so it's very important."

Former heavyweight champion Vitali Klitschko was honored with the Arthur Ashe Award for Courage, having impacted the world beyond sports. Klitschko, mayor of embattled Kyiv, Ukraine, since 2014, wasn't present. He appeared in a pre-taped video.

King led off a tribute to the 50th anniversary of Title IX, the federal legislation that prohibits sex-based discrimination in schools that receive government funding.

She was joined by Lisa Leslie, Brandi Chastain, Chloe Kim, Allyson Felix, Aly Raisman and Rapinoe, among others.

They spoke against a background of black-and-white photos showing women athletes in action, on the field or in the streets advocating for gender equality. Their comments were interspersed with country singer Mickey Guyton performing her songs "What Are You Gonna Tell Her?" and "Remember Her Name."

The ESPYS were criticized by South Carolina women's basketball coach Dawn Staley for not inviting consensus player of the year Aliyah Boston to the show. Boston had hoped to attend and was disappointed not to be asked. She was issued a last-minute invitation but declined it.

ESPN said COVID-19 concerns and a smaller venue forced organizers to prioritize invitees to the show. Boston was nominated in a non-televised category that was handed out a night earlier. She lost to Oklahoma softball star Jocelyn Alo, who took part in the Title IX tribute.

ESPN college basketball broadcaster Dick Vitale received the Jimmy V Award for Perseverance. The 83-year-old has undergone multiple melanoma surgeries and six months of chemotherapy for lymphoma over the last year. In March, he said he was cancer free.

Vitale dismissed messages on the teleprompter urging him to conclude his remarks, which stretched to 20 minutes.

"I'm gonna wrap up in about three minutes," he said in a raspy voice. "Jimmy's dream was to beat cancer. We must do it because it doesn't discriminate. It comes after all."

Crew remains unbeaten after 8 games; Hernández scores in 2-0 win over Cincy

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Cucho Hernández scored his fourth goal in three games since joining Columbus, and the Crew extended their Major League Soccer unbeaten streak to eight with a 2-0 win over Cincinnati on Sunday.

Hernández, a 23-year-old Colombian making his home debut, put Columbus ahead in the 16th minute off a pass from Lucas Zelarayan, who got the second goal on a penalty kick in the 86th.

Hernández scored five league goals last season for England's Watford and joined the Crew for what Columbus said was the largest acquisition fee in in its history.

Eloy Room stopped three shots for the Crew (7-5-8), who have four wins and four draws in the league since a May 21 loss to Los Angeles FC.

Columbus outshot Cincinnati (7-8-6) 17-9, with five shots on goal to three for Cincinnati.

Roman Celentano saved three of five shots for Cincinnati, which was coming off four consecutive league draws.

Both teams next play Saturday.

The Crew host the New England Revolution and Cincinnati hosts Nashville.

Aces hand Fever 11th straight loss 90-77

Wilson scored 14 points and Gray added 12 points and seven assists as the Aces (19-8) built a 52-32 lead by halftime. Las Vegas, which led 25-19 after one quarter, scored the first eight points of the second and led by double digits the rest of the way.

Wilson gave the Aces their largest lead at 68-37 with a 3-pointer at 4:44 of the third period. Jackie Young added 16 points for Las Vegas, and Dearica Hamby finished with 10 points and nine rebounds.

Nalyssa Smith scored 24 points to lead Indiana (5-24). Victoria Vivians scored 14 points and Kelsey Smith added 10 points and seven assists.
